A WONDERFUL CELEBRATION.

What Honolulu Did On Its Government's First Birthday.

THE SPEECHES AND SPEAKERS OF THE EVENING.

Splendid Illuminations at the Executive Building—The Morning's Parade—Fireworks in the Evening—The Largest Crowd Ever Gathered Together in Hawaii

Assembles On Palace Square.

The greatest anniversary in Hawaiian history has come and gone. January 17th, a day that will live in the memories of all loyal people in the group, a day that by us and our descendants will be considered a day of rejoicing and gladness, a day that will be celebrated by everyone.

The celebration of the day started early in the morning, and a regular 4th of July noise was heard from all quarters. Guns, firecrackers, bombs, tin horns and every other available instrument that would make a noise was used. At about 6 A.M. the "Antiques and Horribles" turned out. At 9:30 the parade of the military forces started and drew an immense crowd, estimated at at least 4000 people, who watched their evolutions with great interest. The reception of the President and Mrs. Dole was also a big attraction.

The raising of the big American flag on the flagpole of the American League also took place during the morning. In the afternoon the Band concert at Thomas Square attracted a large crowd.

But the crowning event of the day occurred in the evening. Palace Square was not only crowded, but it was absolutely jammed with a seething mass of humanity. Fully 7000 people were present at the evening's celebration, and they were amply repaid for their trouble in going. There has never been such a crowd on any previous occasion in the history of Hawaii, as assembled at the mass meeting last evening, and the fact that it was, in spite of the immense number, a most orderly gathering, is a matter of congratulation for the people of Honolulu.

The Executive Building and the grounds were a bower of loveliness. Thousands of lanterns were scattered about, suspended on trees, shrubbery, and every available point, while the building itself seemed covered with the soft radiance of innumerable lamps. Stretching from the ground on one side to the ground on the other, and extending to the highest point of the flagpoles on the Executive Building, was a row of delicately colored lanterns. At the top of each flagpole was a circle of lanterns. Across the entrance to the former palace, a row of brilliant red lights was extended. Each balcony was illuminated, and the whole building and grounds looked like a glimpse of fairy land.

All along the front of the grounds of the Executive Building a row of lanterns, lighted by incandescent electric lights, made a grand display. In front of the speakers' stand two long lines of flags of all nations were crossed. The stand itself was lighted by a number of lanterns, and decorated with American flags. A few chairs were placed in front of the stand, but the great majority of the listeners stood.
